

Futsal is a version of indoor soccer that began in South America in the 1930's. It rapidly gained popularity in countries such as Brazil, where famous soccer players such as Pele, Zico, Ronaldinho, Romario, and Kaka grew up playing futsal and credit the game with helping them to develop their superlative soccer skills. Futsal is the only indoor soccer game recognized by FIFA (the Federation Internationale de Football), the international governing body of soccer.

Futsal is played with five players on a team, one of whom is the goalkeeper, and is played on a small field the size of a basketball court with lined boundaries and no walls. It is a complete skill game and effectively develops the fundamental skills of soccer

Futsal is suited for teaching control, technique, passing, and creativity. Youth players develop quick reflexes, fast thinking and pinpoint passing with opportunities for many touches and quick shooting.

This Winter Futsal program is an open format with players training together and playing games. Team assignments are flexible and will encourage adjustments for skill level, desired competition and enjoyment.
